Art Unit: 3753

This office action is responsive to communications filed 01/16/2007.

A claim 1 is pending.

1. It is noted that Claim 1, the only pending claim, is a combination of claims 1 and 6, as presented in the amendment filed June 19, 2006. In response, a Final office action was issued on August 29, 2006. However, the arguments of the applicant filed January 16, 2007 resulted in a reconsideration of the rejection set forth in the Final office action. In view of the newly discovered reference(s) to White et al. (US 6,539,968), the finality of the last Office action mailed 08/29/2006 is withdrawn. Rejections based on the newly cited reference(s) follow.

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Wang et al. (US 5,524,084) in view of White et al. (US 6,539,968).

Wang et al. discloses (Figs. 4 and 7, for example) a gas chromatograph with a fluid control assembly for controlling flow and/or pressure of gas, said fluid control assembly comprising a flow path, a control valve (414), a pressure sensor (420) connected to the flow path in a gas chromatograph for the purpose of ascertaining the pressure thereat of the gas flowing therethrough and a flow sensor (416). A flow resistance is inherent to the arrangement in Wang et al. since the ducting between the valve (414) and the pressure sensor (420) would have a flow resistance, too. A sample introducing part (412) is disclosed. Control means are disclosed in Fig. 7.

The patent to Wang et al. discloses the claimed invention with the exception of explicitly disclosing a first pressure sensor between the flow resistance and the control valve.

White et al. discloses a flow control arrangement wherein a first pressure detecting means (46) is located upstream of a resistance (56) and a second pressure detecting means (48) is located downstream of the resistance (56). The flow amount is computed based on the differential pressure across the resistance and on the value of the second pressure detecting means for the purpose of obtaining an accurate measurement of the flow.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have provided in the arrangement of Wang et al. as set forth above, a pressure detecting means along with a resistance attached to the flow path in lieu of the flow sensor for the purpose of detecting a pressure thereat and allowing the obtaining an accurate measurement of the flow, as recognized by White et al..

Response to Arguments

4. Applicant's arguments with respect to claim rejected above have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

5. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP

Art Unit: 3753

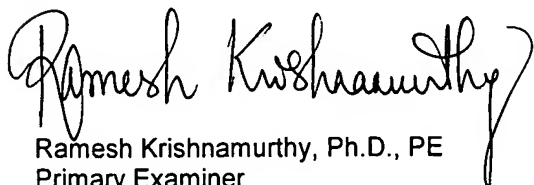

§ 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
